

Tier 2 Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism

Mandatory training on learning disability and autism, with the expertise of autistic people, people with a learning disability and subject matter experts

The training is delivered by the National Autistic Society, who deliver the autism content and have been involved in 'Oliver's training' since 2020, and the Estia Centre, a training centre that specialises in delivering training on learning disability. Together we have extensive understanding and experience in autism and learning disability and in delivering the Tier 2 Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training on Learning Disability and Autism. We have also been chosen by NHS England to deliver the 4-day Lead Trainer Training across England.

Training courses are organised in tiers which align to the Core Capabilities Framework. We deliver Tier 2 training. For more information, see NHS tier guidance.

Why choose us?

- The National Autistic Society (NAS) and Estia, together with our networks of Experts with Lived Experience, are committed to the vision for the Oliver McGowan Mandatory Training (OMMT) in Learning Disability and Autism. We bring the experience, national reach, skills and resource needed to deliver this important programme.
- NAS, the lead partner, has extensive experience and understanding of Oliver's training as we were:
 - a consortia organisation for the OMMT in Learning Disability and Autism trial;
 - a lead organisation in the development of Tier 2 materials and in the delivery of the 4-day Lead Trainer training.
 - the autism training is led and delivered by NAS. The learning disability training is led by partner, Estia, a training centre that specialises in learning disability. Estia has an OMMT-trained Lead Trainer and is already working with NAS on OMMT delivery.
